

Jamal Mourad, DO

I am very excited about the opportunity to serve as a member of the Board of Directors for the AAGL.

I have been attending AAGL meetings for more than 20 years and for the past 9 years actively involved as a Program Director for the FMIGS program at our institution. The AAGL's impact on our specialty is incommensurable. From the support it provides to general members, didactics, tutorials, SurgeryU, bootcamps, etc... to its most valuable creation - the Fellowship in Minimally Invasive Gynecologic Surgery.

Just as impressive as the list of attributes is the list of brilliant surgeons and professors from all over the world. If I am selected by the general membership to be one of our Board members, I will strive to advance the AAGL's agenda of surgical excellence, education, and collaboration. I believe that the AAGL Board members are the ambassadors and stewardesses of this strong tradition of values emphasizing the importance of sharing knowledge and collaboration to enable the younger generations to excel as did their predecessors.

I am committed to adding value to the current platform and supporting the team in future endeavors and challenges that may arise. Tomorrow's AAGL is made stronger by what we do today and as a member of the Board of Directors I intend to get to work on day one advocating for continued progress and building on the existing robust platform created for excellence in patient care, education, diversity, research, and innovation.
